Metaphorically, though, castration takes away something deeper. And for some women - like the infamous Lorena Bobbitt - the act of castration is way to take revenge out on the men in their lives. Sometimes, it is solely the testicles that get the axe. Other times, the entirety of the genitals are targeted for revenge.

Humiliation, forced feminization, forced homosexuality, castration, brainwashing, slavery, solitary confinement, despair I have been born into a prison, and my body is my prison. I was never allowed to be the real me, and this life is a mere transient state to which I could never call home, and all my life I have been waiting, waiting to escape, to return home, to a world that is mine. This entire existence is my prison. I cannot think. I cannot move. I must endure silently. I still remember the times I saw my mother being fucked by my step dad and I had to look away, in disgust, in horror, and in envy. Even though I turned away, I would jealously leer at them, fighting back tears of unfulfilled desire. How much I wish it was to me that my step dad would show the same affection. The sight of my mother being filled to the brim with his powerful white cock made me tingle, and, ever since I could remember, I resented my little asian peepee. I wished I was an Asian girl so I could be fucked by my white step dad too, but he simply refused to touch me. He would complement me on how feminine I was, how little I was, how much he loved the fact that asian boys are basically interchangeable with girls, and how often he jokingly referred to me as a girl, but he never actually treated me like the girl I am. He never loved me the way he loved mommy. I hated him. Yet I loved him and looked up to him, and even worshipped him. And as long as I can remember, I have always wished that I could find a white man just like my white step dad, but unlike my step dad, my white man will castrate me, keep me as a girl for the rest of my life. I want to be fucked in the same way my white step dad fucked my asian mother.

He is the Greek God of the present day. He has everything: car, house, money and looks. His women come and go. He doesnt want kids. Doesnt believe in love. No woman can tie him in marriage. Hes simply just sick of relationships. He has everything he wished for in life until he met her. She, who believes in love. Who dreams of a happy marriage. And she who easily drives him to full arousal with just her smile. He simply wants sex. She simply gives sex to get his love. With a sudden twist of fate, their decisions in life including their wants and needs will be at stake. And to make the game more exciting he wants to be castrated. Luckily, his meaning of castration rhymes with lust. Is castration the answer to his complete surrender? Will the combined ignition of love and lust yield a forever? Or will it fill another bucket of tears for Casslynn and pail of pains for Alexis?

This two-volume set offers comprehensive coverage of horror literature that spans its deep history, dominant themes, significant works, and major authors, such as Stephen King, Edgar Allan Poe, and Anne Rice, as well as lesser-known horror writers.

- Describes horror literature during different periods, thus helping readers understand the roots of modern horror literature, how works of horror have engaged social issues, and how horror has evolved over time
- Connects horror literature to popular culture through sidebars on film adaptations, television shows, video games, and other nonliterary, popular culture topics
- Includes excerpts from selected literary works that exemplify topics discussed in the entries that support English language arts standards by enabling students to read these excerpts critically in light of the entries
- Prompts students to consider the nature of horror as a genre, the relationship of horror literature and social issues, and

The Master Gender is a collection of tall and short tales of female domination over the male of the species. Most of the stories are told from a luckless male's point of view as he becomes subject to the rule and whims of women bent on unmanning him. The Master Gender is a correction for centuries of patriarchal, masculinist, male dominated societies. In these stories, masterful women subject their males to supervised masturbation, emasculation, feminization, castration, pegging, and sissification.

Two high school students in a summer arts program at Yale University collaborate on an "anti-guy musical" with the working title, Castration Celebration.

Shoes, gloves, umbrellas, cigars that are not just objects—the topic of fetishism seems both bizarre and inevitable. In this venturesome and provocative book, Emily Apter offers a fresh account of the complex relationship between representation and sexual obsession in turn-of-the-century French culture. Analyzing works by authors in the naturalist and realist traditions as well as making use of documents from a contemporary medical archive, she considers fetishism as a cultural artifact and as a subgenre of realist fiction. Apter traces the web of connections among fin-de-si è cle representations of perversion, the fiction of pathology, and the literary case history. She explores in particular the theme of "female fetishism" in the context of the feminine culture of mourning, collecting, and dressing.

Self harm is generally regarded as a modern epidemic, associated especially with young women. But references to self harm are found in the poetry of ancient Rome, the drama of ancient Greece and early Christian texts, including the Bible. Studied by criminologists, doctors, nurses, psychologists, psychiatrists and sociologists, the actions of those who harm themselves are often alienating and bewildering. This book provides a historical and conceptual roadmap for understanding self harm across a range of times and places: in modern high schools and in modern warfare; in traditional religious practices and in avant-garde performance art. Describing the diversity of self harm as well as responses to it, this book challenges the understanding of it as a single behavior associated with a specific age group, gender or cultural identity.

In this second book of the series, Patrick's wife, the formidable Elizabeth Remington, decides to take his feminisation and humiliation to a higher level. She remains angry at his poor attempt to take her wealth. After Patrick's failed attempt to escape from his wife's clutches in book 1, he realises that feminisation has certain attractions after all. Elizabeth spots his comfort and acceptance and sets about putting him through a series of very public humiliations including being pegged and cuckolded. Patrick's acceptance of his feminisation is soon challenged by these humiliations and his wife's desire to make his feminisation more permanent. This 32,000 word novel contains erotic scenes of reluctant feminisation, sex, humiliation, CFNM and spanking. For adults aged 18 and over only.

Western elite that shapes the views of those less empowered. Given its global reach, how the Walt Disney Company handles the role of race, gender, and sexuality in social structural inequality merits serious reflection according to a number of the articles in the volume. On the other hand, other authors argue that Disney productions can help individuals cope with difficult situations or embrace progressive thinking. The different approaches to the assessment of Disney films as cultural artifacts also vary according to the theoretical perspectives guiding the interpretation of both overt and latent symbolic meaning in the movies. The authors of the 15 articles encourage readers to engage with the material, showcasing a variety of views about the good, the bad, and the best way forward.
